This is the face of a school which has undergone 50 years of changes, development, and growth. Still changing ... old buildings leave... new ones appear. Yet it remains changeless. Remnants of the past stay with us and live on...

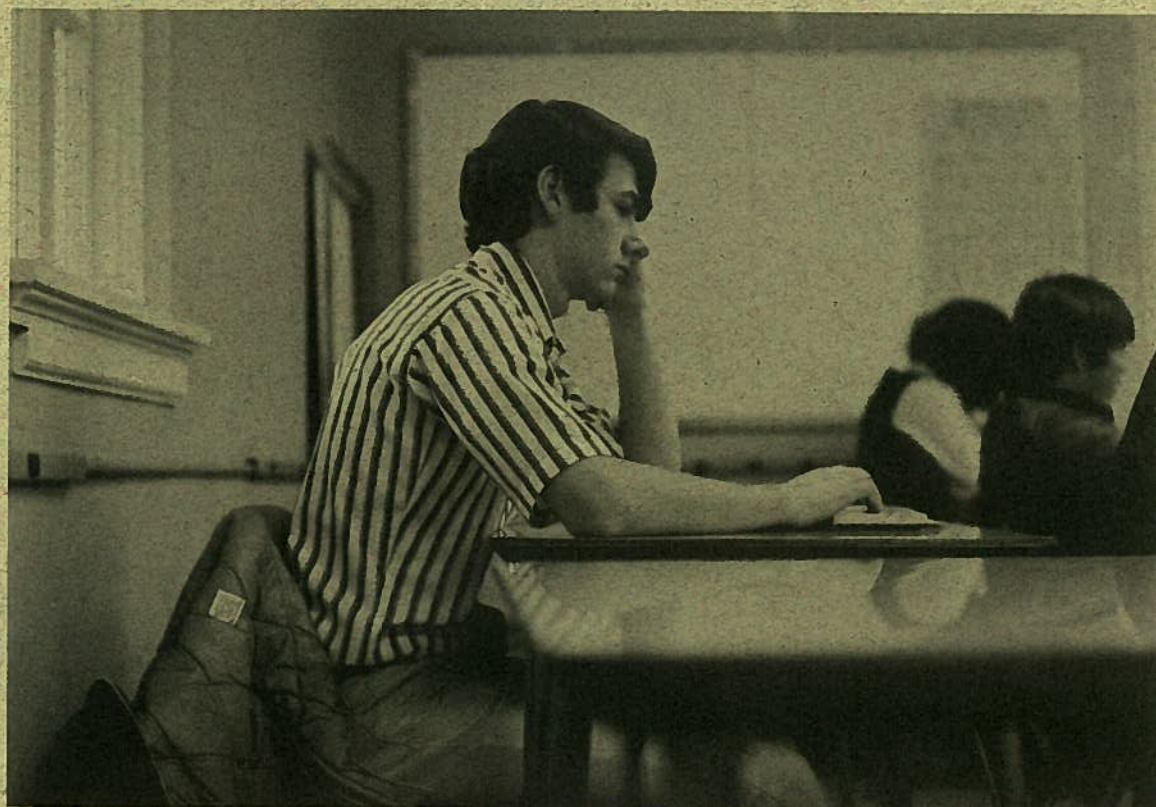

Yet more important than the physical structure of the campus is the human face. Essentially we are no different from those who graduated 50 years ago. Our faces still portray the many moods of a student...

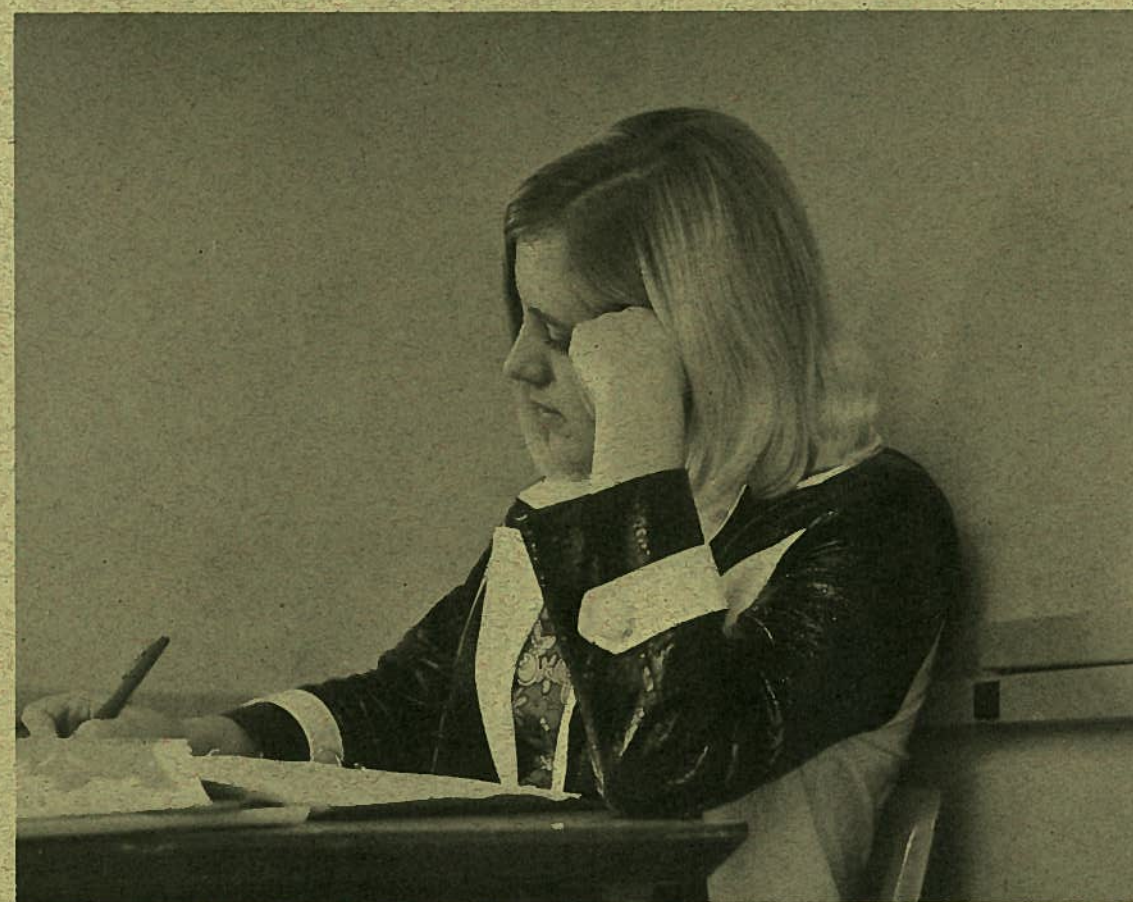

The faces of U.C.A. are many and varied. Each is an open book daily read and contemplated by those you come in contact with...

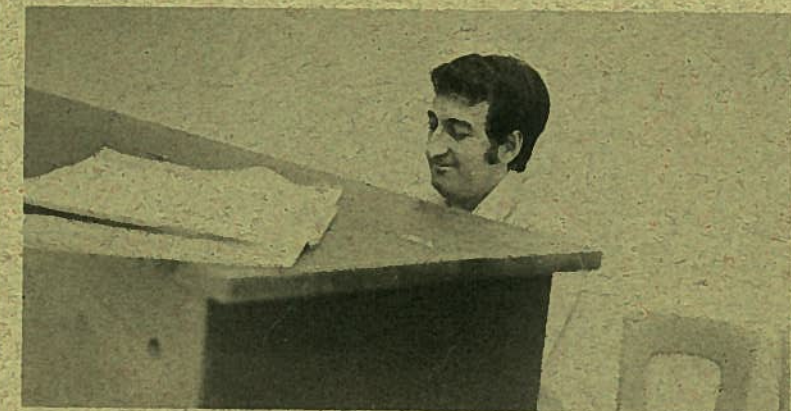

His face. Her face. Each a motion picture screen of moods and personalities. Every student has an infinite number of facial expressions as different and peculiar as each human being...

Together these faces form you, the student body. They form the spirit of a school now in its fiftieth year of existence...

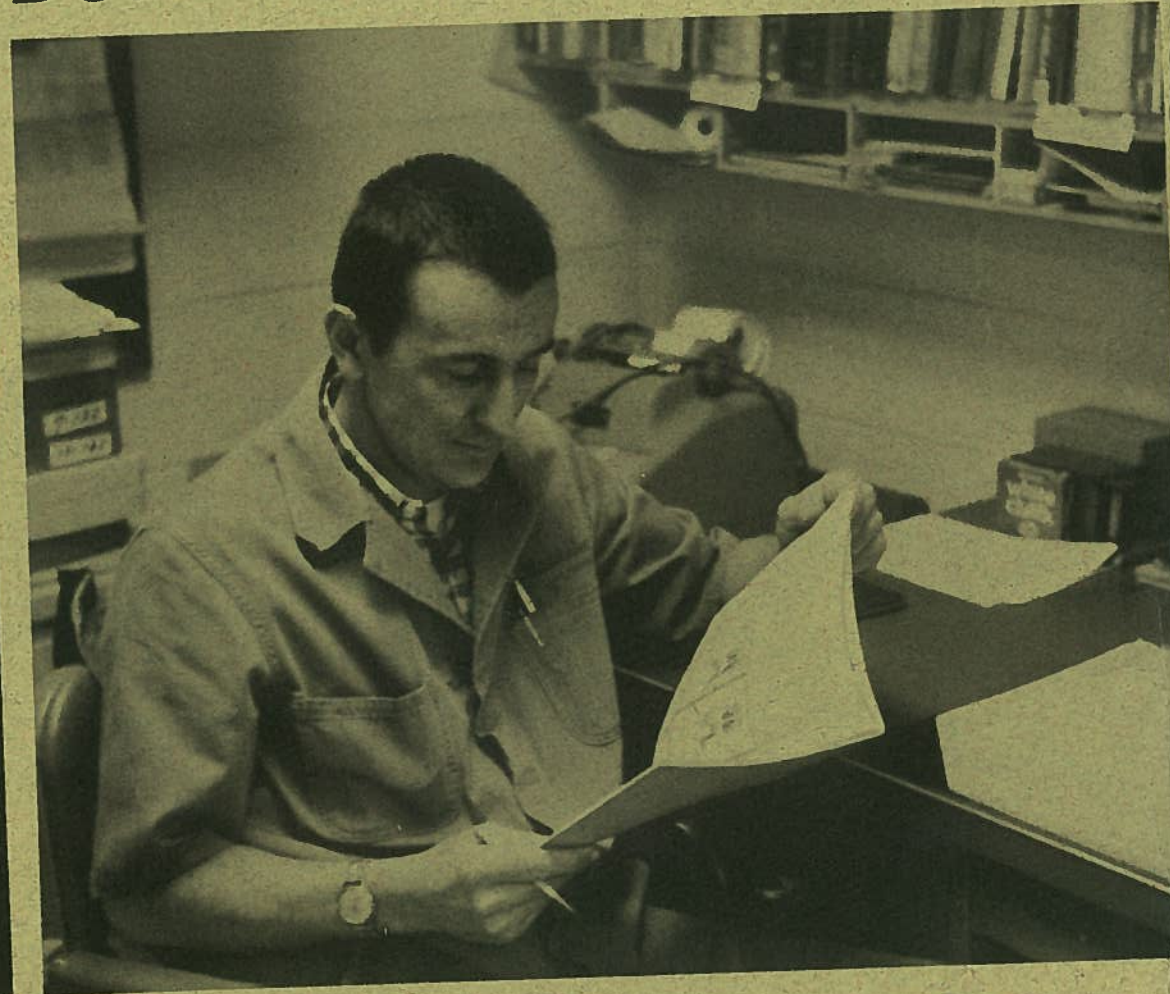

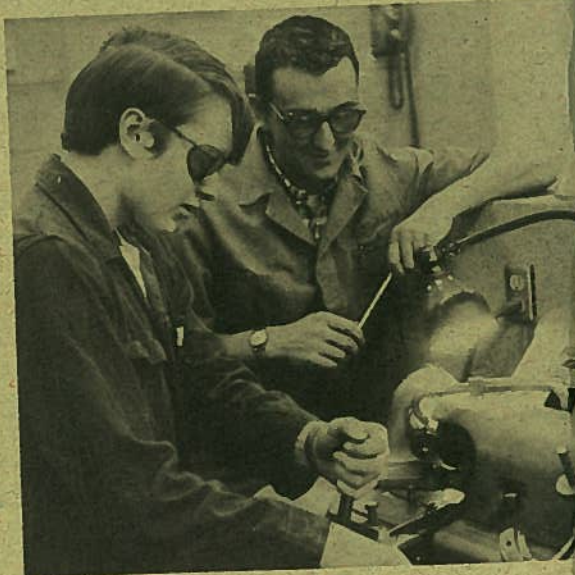

Look through this book. Let the faces reflect back every event and person that was a part of this school year. Faces...

Dedication . . .

Dedication 16

Two people who have shown kindness, helpfulness, understanding, new ideas, and Christian love. Two people who have given their time and energy to make U.C.A. a better school. Two people who have "bridged the gap" by being themselves. . . We are happy to dedicate to you,

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Maddalena,
the 1971 Echo Log.

Happenings

A face. The ever-changing expression and mood. The faces sweating on the ball-field or grinning after a touchdown victory. The faces attentive in work, uplifted with religious hope; absorbed in study and lively discussion; looking fondly at another. Radiant joy on the face of a Senior as his fingers touch the diploma. These are the faces that made U.C.A. a happening place in the school year 70-71.

People

The face is looked at.
Contemplated. Memories appear that have been lost or faded.
A reaction forms in the back recesses of the mind. An outward reaction is mirrored on your face. Cry a little;
laugh a little; as you recall
a quiet moment of friendship or an obscure adventure.
Pass through this collection and look at the faces that make memories.
